Capt. Tallman called the meeting to orfew appropriate remarks on taking the soldier: chair, which were well received. Revs. J. M. Thoburn and J. B. Johnston, and Capt. Danford and C. L. Poorman followed in short addresses.

Revs. Thoburn and Johnston were peculiarly happy in their remarks, and frequently brought down the house in prolonged obearing.

The exercises of the evening were interspersed with some excellent singing by some ladies and gentleman, which added very much to the zest of the occasion. Mr. Cochran also sang a song, a part of which he composed after the meeting commenced. which brought down the house by its many good hits.

Although it was then very nearly 11 o'clock, the people were very reluctant to disperse. It was a grand, glorious occasion.

To THE boys who were engaged on Saturday night last in throwing stones at the omnibus containing those who were displaying the fire works on that occasion, and the young man who tore down the flags from the houses of Union people while they were engaged at the Court House celebrating the Nation's victories, and those who encouraged them to do these things, we would kindly say, the time has come when these demonstrations of treasen and rebel sympathy will no longer be telerated, even in St. Clairsville. from your own houses, you must not attempt to pull them down from the houses of your
